THE statements we make this morning as to the extent and value of the corl trade of the city will astonish many of our readers, who will doubtless learn for the first time that in money returns the coal sold in The Last Day of the Session-Reports Memphis has proven as valuable as veritable dramonds. It is a rapidly growing trade, too, and will in the future, as it has in the past, keep pace with the growth of population. Indeed, as our report says, its advance is a fair indication of the incresse in population. It is such articles as this and the others about the elevator, the railroads, the new buildings and other improvements, published in the APPEAL in the past few weeks, that tell for the city and speak loudly for the enterprise of her people. GERMANY. IN THE REICHSTAG BERLIN, April 14 .- In the Reichstag should not be restricted to police and per measures, but should benefit the wor-ingmen. The abolition of the clastax was the first step towards bene-fiting them. The Emperor is anxious in regard to the passage of the insurant bill, as its failure, he thinks, would hope lessly destroy any chance of passing the sick-poor bill at the next session. The budget for 1884 and 1885 would, therefore, be now submitted to give the next session an opportunity to consider the social condition of the people.

The Emperor's message was a surprise to the Reichstag. The Progressive party pro-pose to discuss the issues brought up. The Liberals' attitude in uncertain. The Right any debate thereon.
